

Visitor Programs and Events – Spring 2014

New York Sites (Jamaica Bay, Staten Island)

Liora Codor Photography Exhibit

Liora Codor is a professional photographer working in New York who has done hundreds of shoots for a variety of print and web venues.

While the commercial photography pays her bills, her heart is in photographing nature, which she has been doing at Gateway for more than a decade. A native of Brooklyn, she and her family, like many others seek the solace of open space and wildlife that she finds in the park. One of her favorite areas is Fort Tilden and the combination of sea shore; buildings and ruins with nature dominating the territory are prominently featured in her photographs. And for this exhibit it is the juxtaposition of photos over time and season that is fascinating.

The same view seen at different hours and different season provides a unique perspective.

As Ms. Codor writes, “This exhibit is my photo essay. I have been visiting and photographing various corners of Fort Tilden on a monthly basis for ten years. The park is so close to the noisy, bustling hectic city and is so magical and rejuvenating. It is amazing to see how clearly the park and wildlife change with the seasons, and how it restores itself, especially after hurricane Sandy. My aim is to take the viewer on a walk through the park and its seasons over time, and provide a perspective that only photographic documentation can.

Please join us for the opening of Liora Codor; A Photographic Essay, on Sunday April 6 from 2 to 4pm and see the park through her eyes and lens.

Programs and offerings: What are you interested in? We want your comments.

Our programs are designed to tell some part of Gateway's story relating to the topics connected to the park and its history, called interpretive themes, which for Gateway are:

- The Natural Wonders, Dynamics and Challenges of an Urban Estuary
- Two Centuries of National Defense
- Maritime Heritage
- Recreation and Education: Quality of Life for All Visitors

In addition to these main themes and stories about the park and its history, other related topics, such as birds, mammals, sea life, and botany of Gateway: nature against the backdrop of an urban area, and sustainable design, meteorology, cartography and geographic information are also to be included.

Our planners are always wondering what other programs you would like to see and are asking for ideas for additions, (along the line of the themes and topics outlined above, of course). And --along the same lines--we are wondering which programs you like and would like to see expanded and perhaps offered more frequently?

So please, let us know what you think. Please send your ideas to Charles.Markis@nps.gov, editor, with heading “program ideas.” We can't promise that every idea will be used, but we will listen and we will share your thoughts and ideas with the park planners.

Gateway Photo Contest

Gear up for the Photo Competition to be held this July. We will be accepting recent (within the last year) photos on the themes and stories outlined above. We want pictures that tell stories—not isolated shots of birds and animals.
